Subject: Changing our booking

Dear Sir or Madam,

My parents have already booked the rooms for our stay in your hotel. Our booking number is XRN23125. First I want to thank you for the booking confirmation and the information which you sent us in the attachment.

Actually we have a little problem. My sister would like to come with us and spend the holiday in your hotel, too. I would like to ask if we could book one more single room. Or is it possible to put one more bed in one of our rooms? Could you inform us about the prices for a further single room or for an additional bed?

The next thing is that we'll arrive quite late. Please let us know how we'll get the room keys after 10 p.m.

We would also like to book a parking lot. It would be nice to get a bigger one because our car is quite big.

Hopefully you can answer my questions as soon as possible.

I'm looking forward to hearing from you soon.

Kind regards,

Lisa Fink

The lost key

Last summer Trevor and his girlfriend went to Spain and every day they went to the beach. They took a lot of food and many drinks with them. One day the couple left the beach and didn't take their rubbish back with them. Unfortunately they forgot their room key, too. In the afternoon two boys who work for the organisation 'Save the Ocean' found the rubbish and the lost key.

When Trevor and his girlfriend arrived at the hotel reception, they suddenly noticed that their key was missing. The young couple was shocked. After a few minutes the two boys who collected the rubbish and found the key arrived at the hotel reception, too. Trevor saw that they gave a key to the receptionist and then he realised that this must have been his missing room key. Trevor's girlfriend felt happy when the boys gave them the key. Both were relieved. But then the boys had another surprise for them. They gave them a bag with all their rubbish inside and they said "Please, take you're rubbish with you when you leave the beach. It's not good for the nature." It was so embarrassing for Trevor and his girlfriend. The following days they always took their rubbish with them.
